ALBERTA - RESTRICTIONS EXEMPTION PROGRAM:

Update Restrictions starting December 24, 2022 - bars and restaurants participating in the province's Restrictions Exemption Program can only serve liquor until 11 p.m. and must close by 12:30 a.m. Only 10 people are allowed per table, with no mingling between tables or interactive activities, such as dancing, darts or billiards.

The Restrictions Exemption Program in Alberta (REP) will start on September 20, 2021. Participating businesses must screen every patron or attendee 12 years of age or older.

Alberta Vaccine records with QR codes will be the only valid Alberta proof of vaccination accepted by operators participating in the Restrictions Exemption Program as of November 15, 2021.

Download the app - <https://www.alberta.ca/covid-records-helpdesk.aspx#app>

The REP does not apply to employees of businesses participating in the program. Therefore, employees will not be required to show proof of vaccination or a negative test on entering the workplace for a business to qualify for the REP.

In addition to the above, a patron or attendee aged 18 or older must also provide the REP-participating business with personal identification that matches their proof of vaccination documents, negative COVID-19 test, or original vaccine medical exception letter. Proof of identification is defined as a valid birth certificate, citizenship card, driver's license, passport, permanent resident card, government issues identification card (e.g., health card), certificate of Indian status, Metis Nation of Alberta Association citizenship and identification card, or Inuit Status card. Photo identification is not required.

Where a patron or attendee cannot produce the required documentation, they must not be allowed to enter the REP-participating business' premise.

Children under 12 years of age are not subject to the above screening requirements.

For international travelers, proof of vaccination can be evidenced by the ArriveCan app and a valid international travel identification document.

Current masking requirements will continue regardless of a business' participation in the REP.

The program does not apply to employees, contractors, repair or delivery workers, volunteers, or inspectors entering the space for work purposes.
